Liberty Youth Singers Release Record, Make Television Appearance

The Liberty Youth Singers of Liberty Baptist Church, Appomattox, will appear on Channel 7, WDBJ Panorama program on Friday, February 2, 1973 at 1:00 p.m. They will be interviewed by Kathy Thornton and sing several numbers.

Pictured above are sixty of the choir members who will be singing on the program under the direction of Mrs. J. Franklin Vaughan and will be accompanied by Mrs. Raymond Mitchell.

The group traveled to Roanoke on the Liberty Belle Church Bus on Wed., Jan. 31, to make the video tape for this program. Mr. Rand Hall is their official bus driver.

Their record "Tell It Like It Is" with permission granted from Word, Inc. for recording was scheduled for release on January 29th. They gave 30 performances of this musical and sang for 38 churches, schools and organizations last year.

The choir has just completed and given the first performance of their original musical, compiled and arranged by members of the group, "One Way Street", and will be presenting it along with their testimony in area churches that have invited them.

Homemaker Hints

If you want smart, unstereotyped accessories, consider using baskets, even if your decorating budget is limited. Take a look at the many places where you can use them to an advantage.

There's a natural spot for an interesting basket in any room in your home. A small entrance hall can be furnished with a shallow chest or table above which can be hung a mirror or picture grouping. On the table, combine a lamp and a basket to hold mail, gloves, all the freight that hall tables get. Be sure to relate size and shape of the basket to the scale of the table. Baskets can be used to hold fireplace wood, to take the place of a magazine rack, to serve as a toy chest in a child's room or as a clothes hamper in a bathroom.

If you are an apartment dweller looking for easily moved furniture, if you need extra storage, or if you're just thrifty, an oversized basket can provide an inexpensive furnishing for your living room. A large hamper with a lid can serve as both table and storage. Some are sized to make ideal end tables; or, use a sturdy low basket as a footstool before a contemporary chair.

If you need out-of-sight storage, devise a storage wall by building shelves, painting them to match the walls, and fill them with an assortment of baskets. If the baskets are deep enough, they will need no covers, but the trunk type is decorative as well as dust proof.

A handy man can use handsome baskets for drawers when building a unique home office desk. Design a simple desk frame with plywood top. Make slide-out frames for the baskets and the result will be a happy one of joining your imagination and creativity.

In a dining room, baskets can be used effectively as centerpieces. One idea is to line up four or five baskets down the center of the table. Fill one with flowers, the other with cookies, fruits, cheese, or decorative cakes. Not only do they look good, but make clearing the table much easier.

Baskets can be converted to shades for lighting fixtures or to drawers, used as furniture and massed together for accessories or storage. They serve as handy pick-up and take-along containers for sewing and knitting, or garden tools.

Let your imagination and creativity do, see what you can come up with for your own home.
